1. As previously reported to you, the Iron Workers Employers Association of Washington, D.C. (IWEA) has chosen the Agency's New Headquarters Building as its "Building of Excellence" for 1986. The IWEA is a trade association made up of iron and steel manufacturers and fabricators, and, as you would expect, recognizes new buildings that utilize a lot of the product that they make and sell. We are attaching to this memorandum a copy of the formal award notification and also your invitation to the awards ceremony.

2. As you will note, the ceremony will be held at the Congressional Country Club in Potomac, Maryland. The announced schedule of activities for that evening is as follows:

We have indicated to the IWEA that you will accept the Owner's Award on behalf of the Director, which was eminently acceptable to them. They have advised that each award recipient is encouraged to make whatever acceptance remarks each deems appropriate. We will prepare a short set of remarks for your consideration.

3. Also attached for your information is a listing of Agency employees and the representatives of the other organizations that are to receive related awards at the same ceremony. A total of some 50 members of the IWEA are expected to attend in addition to our collective representation. If you have any further questions, please call

Dear [Redacted]

The Iron Workers Employers Association of Washington, D.C., an Association of structural steel and architectural metal fabricating and erection firms, annually selects an outstanding new addition to the Metropolitan Washington Building Community which exemplifies the very highest standards of achievement in design and building craftsmanship to be recognized as the "Building of Excellence". Our Committee has selected the C.I.A. New Building Project to be the recipient of the Award "Building of Excellence" for 1986. The awards will be presented at the Annual "Awards of Excellence" Dinner at the Congressional Country Club in Potomac, Maryland on Friday, April 25, 1986.

We are also pleased to advise you that G.S.A. will receive an owners award for the "Building of Excellence" as well as C.I.A. receiving an identical award. The Award for "Excellence in Architecture" and "Excellence in Engineering" will be to Smith, Hinchman and Grylls. The Award for the "Builder of Excellence" will be to Centex Construction Company, Inc. for creating such a superb building as envisioned both in form and function by the design team.

It is our feeling that the key to this successful building project was the selection of the gifted architectural/engineering design team who were provided with a budget which allowed them to perform at the very highest level of competency in achieving function and design compatible with the owners image and stature. May I again offer my congratulations to C.I.A. and G.S.A. and we look forward to a very pleasant evening with you, your staff, the other award recipients and our other distinguished guests. A formal invitation will be forwarded in the near future. I am respectfully requesting that you please notify G.S.A., the architect and engineer and Centex of their selection and please forward a list of principals from each of the organizational offices who should be invited to the Awards Dinner.

Thank you very much for your cooperation.

Very truly yours,

Vic Cornellier
